

Faith, Health and Community (January 2016)

Jesus healed the sick, opened the eyes of the blind, and cast out demons. He commissioned his followers to go out and do likewise. Church leaders continue to be called to provide pastoral care for those who are suffering from mental and physical illnesses, and to accompany those who are dying. More holistically, clergy are called to teach and model healthy behavior that integrates wellness of body, mind and spirit. This track equips clergy to understand the scriptural and theological bases for health, healing and wholeness; to navigate the complexity of the health care industry; to clarify pastoral and ethical roles and responsibilities in caring for the congregation and community members; and to organize congregations to develop healing and whole person health ministries.

January 11-15, 2016 Healing Miracles of Jesus

Dr. Shively Smith (Assistant Professor of New Testament, Wesley)

May 10-13, 2016 Health and Community: The Church's Roles in Promoting Health and Wholeness

Dr. Sam Marullo (Director of Research on Missional Communities, Professor of Sociology, Wesley)

May 16-19, 2016 Theological Framing for Health Care Decisions

Dr. Sondra E. Wheeler (The Martha Ashby Carr Professor of Christian Ethics, Wesley)

Sep 6 – Oct 21, 2016 Online Spirituality, Healing, and Medicine in a Global Context

Dr. Bruce G. Epperly (Pastor and Teacher of South Congregational Church, Centerville, Massachusetts; theologian and author)

January 2-6, 2017 Congregational Health Ministry

Dr. Janet Fujikawa

May 9-12, 2017 Spirituality, Suffering and Meaning

Dr. James Estes

May 15-19, 2017 Building Leadership Capacity for Change and Service

Dr. Lovett Weems

Sept 5 – Oct 10, 2017 Online Project Seminar

Dr. Lewis A. Parks (Director, Doctor of Ministry Program, Wesley)

Two Elective Courses from several classroom and online options – schedule available on-line
Anticipated Graduation May 2019