

COVID-19 policy

Updated November 4, 2022

As of November 4th, Wesley is transitioning further within our Safe Return to Campus Guidelines and Best Practices. We have decided to expand and update our mask policy to include previously deemed “mask-required” spaces on campus, and our masking language has changed. For clarity:

Classrooms: Students and Faculty will no longer be required to mask. Faculty may tell students that masks are recommended during class, and students working on group assignments may tell their classmates that masks are appreciated/recommended in close proximity.

Public Campus Spaces (Kresge, Trott, the Library, Chapel, the Refectory, and all other rooms, offices, and hallways within): masks recommended

Residence Halls: masks recommended

Guest Apartments: masks recommended

Please note the continued emphasis on respecting each other’s comfort level without requiring masks.

It is assumed that all visitors to the campus are vaccinated. Visitors will be told that masking is recommended if they are unvaccinated against COVID-19, and individual offices may let visitors and community members know that masks are appreciated/recommended in the confines of their office/department.

Please continue to consider others’ comfort levels during this transition. If a community member, office, or visitor has a “masks appreciated/recommended” sign on their door or makes the request verbally when in close contact with them, please treat their request respectfully.

Wesley will no longer require visitors to complete the COVID-19 Visitor Questionnaire before entering campus buildings. The Facilities team will remove all Questionnaire/QR signs from campus.

Vaccination Reminder

All students, faculty, staff, and administrators must be vaccinated and boosted against COVID-19. The only exemption to this requirement is for individuals with a confirmed medical exemption, meaning they must present a letter from their physician to the appropriate office for consideration without disclosing the diagnosis. The appropriate office for students is the Office of Community Life, and the HR Office is for faculty, staff, and administrators.
